1 The Landmarks floor lamp by Sylvain Willenz for Established & Sons, $2789, in safety-orange, powder-coated sheet metal, is inspired by road signs and will go about its business with an authoritative air. simonjamesdesign.com 2 The Kitty Ball Cat Bed, $295, by The Refined Feline, is made from a non-toxic poly rattan that's claw-resistant while its cushion is machine washable. Available in white or espresso. cocoandpud.com.au 3 Kokako is known for its simple, organic, vegetarian food, and has a new store in the old Grey Lynn Post Office building. Their emphasis on locally sourced produce has been applied to their fit-out too, with windows and doors from local scrap yards and, we're told, relics from the old Post Office's basement being primed for display. kokako.co.nz 4 Martinborough winery owner Hiroyuki Kusuda is possibly the world's most meticulous winemaker. Each bunch of grapes is carefully selected before being taken from the vine and studied at length to remove any berry with the slightest imperfection. The result is wine of wonderful depth, precision and texture, such as the Kusuda 2009 Syrah, Martinborough, $75. Wine for collectors. kusudawines.com 5 The new BMW M5 model, from $229,000, has been redesigned to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the company's involvement in motorsport. It's still a luxury sedan on the outside, but with all new specs under the bonnet, a 4.4 litre V8 engine, more horsepower and torque, and better handling. bmw.co.nz
